

00:22:21 Christine Ferrell: Welcome!

00:22:49 Christine Ferrell: We are grateful to our partners in this collaborative effort: AASCU, ACE, APLU, CIC, NASH.

00:23:09 Christine Ferrell: We will be using this chat window during the webinar to share one-way communications, including hyperlinks to related resources.

00:23:30 Christine Ferrell: We ask that you use your Q&A window (found at the bottom of your Zoom screen) to pose your comments and questions.

00:24:33 Christine Ferrell: We will try to get to all of your questions during this webinar, but we know that's nearly impossible! Following the webinar, we will share a recording of the webinar, as well as related resources at <https://acue.org/webinars/online-discussions>. We'll share that link again near the end of the webinar. From there, we can continue the conversation on our discussion forum there.

00:25:57 Christine Ferrell: Asynchronous e-learning, commonly facilitated by media such as e-mail and discussion boards, supports work relations among learners and with teachers, even when participants cannot be online at the same time. It is thus a key component of flexible e-learning.

Synchronous e-learning, commonly supported by media such as videoconferencing and chat, has the potential to support e-learners in the development of learning communities. Learners and teachers experience synchronous e-learning as more social and avoid frustration by asking and answering questions in real time.
