CROSSWALK

INCLUSIVE AND EQUITABLE TEACHING CURRICULUM

ACUE

Curriculum Crosswalk

As educators, we must work to create welcome and inclusive learning environments that promote equitable and successful outcomes for all students. We also know that learning is more than an intellectual exercise. Students bring to our classes their hopes for the future, their fears of failure, and the range of emotions one experiences when encountering new and challenging ideas in dialogue with peers and professors. They also bring their life experiences and prior knowledge—assets to better understand and build on.

Achieving equity requires that we teach with practices that embrace the diversity of our students' backgrounds. We must also thoughtfully review our instructional approaches to identify—and change— any unintended practices that might limit student expectations and achievements. Just as we approach our disciplines with prior assumptions and theoretical orientations, we must ensure that we approach our teaching, and our students, with equitable beliefs about their ability to learn and the opportunity gaps that we have the ability to close. As ACUE research shows, doing so leads to stronger levels of academic achievement indistinguishable by race, ethnicity, gender, and income level.

The need for effective, equitable instruction could not be greater. Today, only about half of the nation's 17 million first-time undergraduates will graduate within a typical time frame. Completion rates are even lower among first-generation and low-income students as well as students of color. Despite a national goal to see 60% of young adults hold a college credential by 2025, a recent study by the Educational Testing Service (ETS) found that Black and Latinx men and women will not meet this goal for decades, if current trajectories remain unchanged.[1] This must, and can, change, by focusing on the core of the collegiate experience to ensure that every student benefits from evidence-based instructional practices that promote inclusivity, persistence to graduation, and deeper levels of learning.

ACUE's Effective Practice Framework© presents the core set of teaching skills and knowledge that every college educator needs to teach effectively. It is steeped in an asset-based philosophy that values students' prior knowledge and experiences. We also recognize that too many college students, and disproportionately Black, Latinx, and Indigenous students, have been underserved in their previous educational experiences. Regardless of these backgrounds, and as research shows, educators equipped with proven methods have the ability to prepare these and all students for purposeful lives.

Inclusive teaching practices help all students' learn, but are "especially beneficial to students who are members of groups underrepresented in their fields or traditionally underserved by institutions of higher education," notes the Center for Teaching and Assessment of Learning at the University of Delaware, a recipient of the 2018 Higher Education Excellence in Diversity Award.[2]

The University of Michigan's Center for Research on Learning and Teaching similarly explains that inclusive teaching occurs when faculty "deliberately cultivate a learning environment where all students are treated equitably, have equal access to learning, and feel welcome, valued, and supported in their learning [and] attend to social identities."[3]

Equity-promoting teaching practices are among the hundreds of recommended approaches that faculty learn about and develop in ACUE courses, as demonstrated in this Curriculum Crosswalk. Faculty nationwide are implementing these approaches, and evidence shows that racial and income-based achievement gaps close when students are taught by ACUE-credentialed educators. ACUE is honored to partner with colleges and universities nationwide to ensure that higher education remains an engine of opportunity and mobility.

The ACUE Curriculum

The following table presents the alignment of the principles of inclusive teaching with specific teaching practices recommended in ACUE courses.

The table demonstrates the high degree to which ACUE's teaching competencies, as defined in its EFFECTIVE PRACTICE FRAMEWORK©, prepare faculty to implement evidence-based approaches that create an inclusive learning environment resulting in equitable outcomes.

Inclusive Teaching Principle

ACUE Recommended Practices*

Inclusive Learning Objectives

Inclusive student learning outcomes (SLOs) are clear and understandable to students, achievable for everyone (as much as possible), and reasonable given the time frame and the resources provided to those taking your course. When drafting your SLOs, make sure that they fulfill all the characteristics of a SMART outcome. This means that your SLOs are:

▷ Specific

▷ Measurable/Meaningful

▷ Appropriate & Attainable

▷ Realistic & Time-Framed

Well-written learning targets provide instructors with a structure for developing assessments that measure levels of learning. At the same time, good SLOs let students know what to expect in your course and how they must prepare to be successful in the area of study. When developing your SLOs, consider using the active verbs from Bloom's Taxonomy (2001 version).

Ensuring Learner-Centered Course Outcomes

▷ Are student-centered

—Describe the work that students will be expected to do

▷ Are measurable

—Contain action verbs that describe what students will do and can be measured through aligned assignments or assessments.

▷ Are meaningful

—Represent knowledge and skills students will use in subsequent courses or in their future.

Inclusive Assessments & Activities

Culturally responsive teaching "involves checking for mastery of student learning outcomes in a way that takes into consideration students' cognitive, cultural and interdisciplinary diversity" (Ladson-Billings, 1994). Providing students with equitable learning opportunities builds trust, enhances your rapport with the learners in your classroom and, consequently, improves student motivation (Weimer, 2010).

▷ Be explicit about your assessment criteria and how they relate to learning goals, and share successful examples

▷ Think beyond tests and papers; give students multiple ways and repeated opportunities to reflect upon and demonstrate their learning and growth

▷ Create low-stakes opportunities for students to practice before they are asked to perform

COMPETENCY 1B:
Designing Aligned Assessment and Assignments

▷ Identify appropriate evidence of mastery

▷ Design transparent assignments aligned to learning outcomes

COMPETENCY 1C
Aligning Learning Experiences With Course Outcomes

▷ Design relevant and aligned learning activities

▷ Integrate students' prior experiences and cultural wealth

▷ Design opportunities for students' to practice core skills

COMPETENCY 2D
Motivating Your Students

▷ Vary and offer rationale for assessment types

▷ Vary and offer rationale for presentation methods

COMPETENCY 2E
Ensuring Equitable Access to Learning

▷ Use exemplars so that expectations are clear

▷ Ensure assignments and activities prepare students

COMPETENCY 2F
Helping Students Persist in Their Studies

▷ Offer options in assignment types

▷ Offer choice in assignment submissions

Checking for Student Understanding

▷ Use quizzes as formative assessments

▷ Use informal, continuous checks for understanding

Inclusive Grading & Assessment

In considering how to evaluate students' work, inclusive teaching considers that learners come to class with varying degrees of development in areas such as time management and study skills. Students' life situations also vary. Some may be working full time to support families, raising their own children while attending college, or managing mental health issues. First-generation students may lack support in navigating college in general. Providing some flexibility in assignment structure and due dates can be helpful for all students. Idea to consider:

- Consider dropping the lowest test or quiz grades
- Allow students to redo assignments to improve their scores
- Give students the opportunity to do test corrections to earn partial credit on questions they missed
- Allow one late assignment per semester—no questions asked

Strategies for Inclusive Feedback and Grading

- Use rubrics for inclusive grading
- Peer evaluation
- Student self-evaluation

COMPETENCY 2E
Ensuring Equitable Access to Learning

- Provide opportunities to use feedback to improve performance
- Incorporate research-based study skills
- Use exemplars so that expectations are clear
- Provide opportunities for students to practice

Helping Students Persist

- Establish peer-to-peer support

Developing Self-Directed Learners

- Provide students with opportunities to self-assess their work and process
- Use checklists and rubrics to facilitate self- and peer assessments
- Integrate structured peer review into projects and papers
- Share time estimates to help students manage their time
- Prompt self-reflection on assignments

COMPETENCY 5A
Developing Equitable Grading Practices

- Use grading practices that motivate students
- Mitigate the negative impact of late work

Creating Equity With Checklists and Rubrics

- Teach students to use grading tools to improve
- Explain rubric and checklist criteria to ensure student understanding
- Use rubrics and checklists to provide meaningful feedback
- Use grading tool data to track progress and improve your instruction

Providing Useful Feedback

- Give students the opportunity to practice revising

Inclusive Course Content

Promote diversity and inclusion through course content and course design

Embracing Diversity

Ensure your curriculum incorporates diverse perspectives and experiences

▷ Ensure your course examples reflect a diverse society

Inclusive Syllabus

A class syllabus is not only a record of assignments and activities, it is also a representation of who we are as instructors and the goals and ideals we wish to share with our students. The policies we choose to include in our syllabus—and the way we frame required policies—reflect our values and convey to students how we see them as learners and citizens in our classroom.

Source: https://sites.lsa.umich.edu/inclusive-teaching/2017/08/24/inclusive-syllabus-language/

A syllabus is often the first exposure students have to a course and instructor. The syllabus is more than the road map of a course. It is also a reflection of the instructor. What is included and excluded in a syllabus sends explicit messages to students about what an instructor values. Developing an inclusive syllabus is a key first step toward creating an inclusive classroom environment.

Preparing an Inclusive Syllabus

▷ Use a checklist to verify that all essential items for classroom and/or online course expectations are included

▷ Create a calendar outlining important dates

▷ Use student-friendly language and visuals

▷ Increase student engagement with your syllabus (use visuals, create a graphic or liquid syllabus, include big ideas to show the relevance of the course)

▷ Include appropriate additions and detail for an online syllabus

COMPETENCY 2G
Embracing Diversity

▷ Ensure your syllabus sets the tone for diversity and inclusion by including:
  – A syllabus diversity statement
  – Expectations for valuing differences through respectful dialogue
  – Policies, statements, and/or resource information that address the needs and concerns of all of your students

COMPETENCY 2E
Ensuring Equitable Access to Learning

▷ Use exemplars to ensure expectations are clear

COMPETENCY 4A
Providing Clear Directions and Explanations

▷ Explain the purpose and relevance of the activity

▷ Break down the activity into specific steps

▷ Record and elaborate on the steps

▷ Check for clarity of the directions and invite questions

▷ Uncover and address common misconceptions

▷ Create videos that allow for self-pacing and self-checks

▷ Provide support for understanding vocabulary

▷ Incorporate relevant examples

▷ Incorporate retrieval practice to sustain learning

▷ Use data and feedback to monitor comprehension

COMPETENCY 3A
Using Groups to Ensure Active Learning

▷ Share the aim and rationale for the task

Planning Effective Discussions

▷ Provide detailed expectations, rubrics, and exemplars of productive contributions to discussion forums

Facilitating Engaging Discussions

▷ Set clear expectations and identify model posts

COMPETENCY 4E
Developing Self-Directed Learners

▷ Use examples of prior student work

▷ Use checklists and rubrics to facilitate self-and peer assessment

Creating Equity with Checklists and Rubrics

▷ Explain checklist and rubric criteria

▷ Engage students in creating rubrics

Inclusive teaching involves creating a learning atmosphere that is accessible and meaningful for all.

Students who feel comfortable in a classroom and who have some positive rapport with the teacher are likely to have better learning outcomes. In one Indiana University study, students reported that one important condition of their achievement in class is that they feel their instructor "cares about them." In the long run, an instructor will accomplish more learning by spending some time, especially in the first few classes, on creating a supportive environment by such actions as learning student names, being friendly and open, and making encouraging statements to the class.

The following table presents a set of actionable inclusive teaching practices that can be implemented to create an inclusive and supportive learning environment, as well as the alignment with specific teaching practices recommended in ACUE courses.

Inclusive Teaching Principle

Create opportunities for students to build rapport with each other and with you at the beginning of and throughout the semester.

Leading a Productive First Day

▷ Practice or post a welcome message

▷ Greet students as they come into the classroom or course

▷ Use an icebreaker to build community

▷ Post a personal introduction

▷ Create an online introduction discussion forum

Motivating Your Students

▷ Share your interest and background in the discipline and encourage students to do the same

▷ Share how course learning is relevant to students' interests and goals

COMPETENCY 2E
Ensuring Equitable Access to Learning

▷ Encourage student-to-student support

Help Students Persist

▷ Establish peer-to-peer support

COMPETENCY 3E
Facilitating Engaging Discussions

▷ Strengthen peer connections

▷ Offer guidelines to respond to peers

▷ Use prompts to support peer-to-peer learning

Developing Self-Directed Learners

▷ Use checklists and rubrics to facilitate self-and peer assessment

▷ Integrate a structured peer review into papers and projects

Providing Useful Feedback

▷ Conduct structured peer review session

COMPETENCY 5D
Checking for Student Understanding

▷ Create a Student Q & A forum

Plan discussion prompts that take into consideration learners' backgrounds, perspectives, and values.	COMPETENCY 3D Planning Effective Class Discussions ▷ Develop prompts that leverage student experience and reinforce real-world application ▷ Develop prompts to invite diverse viewpoints ▷ Create multiple prompts to allow students choice COMPETENCY 2G Embracing Diversity ▷ Explicitly invite diverse perspectives and viewpoints
Include a civility statement in the syllabus that addresses specific expectations for student behavior, interaction, and communication.	COMPETENCY 2B Promoting a Civil Learning Environment ▷ Set clear incivility and netiquette guidelines in your syllabus *(organized by competencies defined in the ACUE Effective Practice Framework©)

Inclusive Teaching Principle	ACUE Recommended Practices*
At the start of a semester, establish community norms by having students identify and discuss their own expectations for respectful engagement and civil discourse in the online environment. Create course policies around these expectations. Hold students accountable—and have students hold one another accountable—when these policies are not followed.	COMPETENCY 2B Promoting a Civil Learning Environment ▷ Collaborate with students to create community norms ▷ Effectively respond to minor disruptions ▷ Effectively respond to major challenges negatively impacting the learning environment ▷ Coach students to manage challenging conversations COMPETENCY 2G Embracing Diversity ▷ Set ground rules for maintaining productive discourse ▷ Manage disruptions and "hot moments"
Understand the impact of stereotype threat and microaggressions on student learning and belonging.	COMPETENCY 2G Embracing Diversity ▷ Understand stereotype threat and implement practices to reduce it ▷ Recognize, avoid, and mitigate the impact of microaggressions ▷ Teach students to recognize and address microaggressions ▷ Use language to validate student identities *(organized by competencies defined in the ACUE Effective Practice Framework©)

Inclusive Teaching Principle

Unearth your assumptions, examine your biases about students.

Source: Linking Implicit Bias to Classroom Teaching Practices (S. Brookfield)

In a teaching and learning context, implicit bias presents a serious barrier to leveraging the benefits of a heterogeneous learning space in which students feel welcomed and validated. Therefore, it is important that instructors do the difficult work of self-examination to determine what their biases are and how to work against them. Once these biases have been identified, it is up to them to challenge those notions and move toward a more open approach to learning and appreciating cultural differences. Given the deep impact that bias can have on one's perspective of others, this process is ongoing—even lifelong!—and requires a commitment to developing cultural competency and an attitude of humility in interactions with culturally different others.

Embracing Diversity

▷ Become aware of your implicit biases

▷ Consider how your implicit biases may impact students

▷ Mitigate the impact of implicit bias in assessment and feedback practices

▷ Use student feedback to reflect on your role as an inclusive educator
